

TFOET

Tropical Further Offshore Emergency Training

The TFOET course is a refresher course for students who have previously conducted the BOSIET or TBOSIET training. The TFOET training is recognised in various regions around the world and includes cold water areas. The course is delivered to people who have had exposure to the oil and gas industry and a good level of knowledge is presumed.

This face to face course runs for a period of 1 day and comprises of the following elements:

1. Fire extinguisher training

A combined theory and practical sessions where students re-visit different classes of fires, different types of extinguishers and conduct an interactive session where students will select the correct fire extinguisher and practice correct application techniques.

2. Smoke Escape

Following a short theory session students will be required to navigate through a smoke filled and darkened compartment practicing effective self rescue techniques whilst wearing a smoke escape hood.

3. Helicopter underwater escape training (HUET) & Sea survival

Students will partake in a short theory session where they will discuss helicopter emergencies and escape techniques. Following the theory is a practical session which has students will practice escape techniques in a variety of different scenarios including; surface evacuation, vertical submersion and capsized submersion.

This will be followed by a short sea survival session where students will demonstrate a variety of sea survival techniques.
